RUSSIA AND FRANCE TOGETHER.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA LIKEWISE.

A Straw Which Shows the Way the Wind Blows---A Difficulty on the Railroad When a Frenchman Tried to Bayonet an Englishman---More Troubles Ahead in China.

By wire to the Telegram.

Tien-Tsin, June 15—The jealousy of of Russian and French authorities accounts for supposed facilities granted the English by the British emyloyees of the Chinese railways. It had been growing constantly and reached a climax yesterday when Inspector Weir refused to hand over an engine to some French marines. One of the latter attempted to bayonet Weir, but the weapon passed over his shoulder. Prompt action by the British naval consular authorities backed up by American consul affected a concilliatory settlement of affairs.

SITUATION DANGEROUS.

London, June 15—Observers at Shanghai and Ties-Tsin think there is a great deal more trouble ahead for the concert of powers than merely reaching Pekin with 2,044 men. Serious disturbances are taking place at Yun Nan Fu and Meng Tse, as well as as at other points at a considerable distance from the capital. The whole Chinese empire seems to be in a ferment. The intentions of the Empress Dowager are still equivocal, with a balance of testimony on the side of a determination to expel the appropriators of a part of her country, or to die in the attempt. It is related of her that on Monday following the murder of the chancellor of the Japanese legation, she was aroused to a sense of danger, and went personally to the Yung Ting gate of Pekin, where she advised the rioters to disperse, but she took no steps to apply force and the appearance of things is more threatening than before.

Death af Mrs. Reeves.

News was received here this morning of the death of Mrs. M. H. Reeves, which occurred at her home in Mt. Airy last night. Her death was caused by heart disease, from which she had been a sufferer for some time. She was the mother of Mr. R. E. Reeves, of the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company, and Mr. Mike Reeves, of the Odell Hardware Company. They both went to Mt. Airy today.

The office of the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company was closed this afternoon on account of the death of Mrs. Reeves.

Smoking Dollar Cigars.

Mr. W. S. Hyams, secretary of the Republican State Executive Committee, who is at Republican headquarters in this city, received from Manila a few days ago a box of the finest cigars manufactured in the Philippines. They are above the average in size and would retail in this country for one dollar each. They make a splendid smoke for a person that likes a strong cigar.

Delightful Hay Ride.

Miss May Stewart and Miss Genevieve Jennings tendered the young ladies of the senior class of the Normal a delightful hay ride and lawn party last evening. The wagons were tastily draped in yellow aud white bunting—the college colors. After a pleasant ride, delicious refreshments were enjoyed on Mrs. Jennings' pretty lawn.

At 6:15 yesterday morning the Southern train on the Western road, was partly wrecked near Biltmore. The engine left the track at a curve, wrecking it, but hurting no one.

ELEVEN PERSONS CREMATED.

A Firebug Burned a Tenement this Morning and Two Families Met a Horrible Death.

By Wire to the Telegram.

New York, June 15—A tenement burnt on Jackson street early this morning. Eleven lives were lost and six persons injured.

The building was fired in two places. William Cottor, his wife and five children were killed, none of the family escaping. Lovis Marion, his wife and two children were killed, and six other children injured, none of the family being unhurt. Three other families were in the house but Patrick Byrnes was the only one injured, and he is now dying in the hospital. The policemen made many heroic rescues.

Rusian Wolf Story.

"Well," said the red-faced man, 'the most exciting case I ever had happened a few days ago in Russia. One night, when sleighing about ten miles from my destination, I discovered, to my intense horror, that I was being followed by a pack of wolves. I fired blindly into the pack, killing one of the brutes, and to my delight, saw the others stop to devour it.

"After doing this, however, they still came on. I kept on repeating the dose, with the same result and each occasion gave me an opportunity to whip up my horses. Finally there was only one wolf left, yet on it came, with its fierce eyes glaring in anticipation of a good, hot supper."

Here the man who had been sitting in the corner burst forth into a fit of laughter.

"Why, man," said he, "by your way of reckoning that last wolf must have had the rest of the pack inside of him!"

"Ah!" said the red-faced man, "now I remember, it did wabble a bit."—London Tit-Bits.

In Wall Street.

Wayfarer from Arcadia—As I came up Wall street it struck me as being a sordid rift in something. "Sordid rift" is good, but what's it a rift in? Eh?

Denizen of the Street—Sordid rift. Yes, that's good. What ails it's being a rift in the loot?—Life.

THE BANKERS' SECOND DAY.

DR. WINSTON'S SPLENDID ADDRESS.

The Bankers Hear it With the Greatest Satisfaction—Several Other Interesting and Important Subjects Discussed Before the Association Today—Short and Informal Talks by Members—Reception Last Night.

The second day's session of the Banker's Association was called to order by President Joseph G. Brown at 10:30 this morning.

The following gentlemen were appointed members of a committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year: L. H. Cutler, W. A. Hunt, J. W. Fry, F. H. Briggs and W. H. McDonald.

It was ascertained that the following members of the association had arrived since yesterday's session: R. S. Watt, Reidsville; L. Harrison, Rock Hill; L. R. Hagood, King's Mountain; John F. Wiley, Durham; J. H. Beall, Lenoir; H. C. Menzee. Hickory; A. N. Smith, Smithfield; Miss Belle M. Faucett, Mt. Airy; A. W. McLean, Lumberton.

The following visitors were noted: Dr. George T. Winston, H. M. Victor, S. B. Shepherd, W. W. Williamson and J. T. Catlin.

A letter was read from Dr. H. W. Lilly, president of the Bank of Fayetteville, expressing his regret that circumstances made it impossible for his bank to be represented at this meeting and assuring the association of his hearty support and co-operation.

President Brown announced that the association was particularly fortunately in having the privilege of listening to an address by Dr. George T. Winston.

PRESIDENT WINSTON'S ADDRESS.

Industrial Education and the Use of Machinery Essential to the Development of North Carolina.

President Geo. T. Winston, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of North Carolina, addressed the Association in his usual felicitous style, on the great subject of the development of the State's resources, and the part that industrial education and machinery must play in this development. The speech was an admirably systematized statement of our State's resources and possibilities.

The first sentence epitomized our history for the past hundred years: "A century ago North Carolina ranked among the foremost States in wealth and population. We held our own, as long as agriculture was the sole pursuit of the country and population was confined to the Atlantic Seaboard. But the settlements of new states with soils more fertile and better adapted to agricultural machinery, and the development of manufactures, mining and commerce, in the Middle States and New England, sent us gradually down in the scale of wealth, until in 1899 her per capita of wealth was the lowest in the Union."

The next one spoke of our future: "But there is a great possibility for North Carolina. She is practically an undeveloped State. Her resources still exist, awaiting skill and larger knowledge for their full development. The State possesses eight principal sources of wealth. I. The soil and its crops. II. Forests. III. Mines. IV. Fisheries. V. Water-power. VI. Health and pleasure resorts. VII. Climate. VIII. Population."

The speaker then discussed the possibilities of North Carolina as a state of vast undeveloped resources, which were to be touched by the magic hand of education, training and skilled labor. It was shown how, by the use of machinery, skill and invention, with increasing markets furnished by factories and urban populations, agriculture may be made profitable, especially when diversified into the various and kindred pursuits of trucking and fruit growing, stock raising and forestry. Following this came a discussion of mines, fisheries, water-power, health resorts, and climate and population. Under this latter head, he said in part: It may be said of North Carolina as Charles I. said of England: "A man can be a broad here and at work more days in the year and more hours in the day than anywhere else on the globe." North Carolina has been called "a nursery of men for other states." Certainly she has been

The Constitution May be Suspended.

By Wire to the Telegram.

London, June 15.—The Afrikander Rand, or congress, opened today with seventy delegates, including seven assemblymen. It is feared at Capetown that a parliamentary deadlock will probably lead to the temporary suspension of the constitution and there is much anxiety in regard to the possible outcome of such a grave step. Sir Gordon Sprigg is experiencing much difficulty in forming a cabinet, Schriener persisting in his refusal to support the ministry dominated by Cecil Rhodes, owing to personal antipathies, and coalition seems impracticable.

Important Insurgent Captured,

By Wire to the Telegram.

Washington, June 15.—Gen. Macabules, one of the important Filipino insurgent officers, uncaptured, has surrendered to the American military authorities.

MacArthur this morning reported that he brought with him eight officers, 124 men and 124 rifles. MacArthur says he is the last insurgent officer in Zeurlac and Bangaseman.

Mrs. Dodge Gets Back Her Diamonds.

By Wire to the Telegram.

New York, June 15.—In the suit by the Government for the forfeiture of sixty four thousand dollars worth of jewelry seized by custom house officials from Mrs. Phyllis E. Dodge, when she landed from the steamer St. Paul a year ago, today the jury decided in favor of Mrs. Dodge.

Rain in India.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Calcutta, June 15.—Rain fell continuously in the Darjeeling district for three days, ceasing at four this morning. Several slight land slides occurred and a number of water pipes were broken.

Shirt Factory Changes Management.

The business of the Armfield Manufacturing Company was today sold to the Hunter Manufacturing and Commission Company. The concern was recently organized and put into operation for the manufacture of shirts.

The Telegram is told that unless more favorable freight rates can be secured the plant will be moved to another town and operated. Freight rates are a most important factor in any manufacturing enterprise in this day of sharp competition.

We Are Grateful.

The members of the Southside Hose Company take this method of expressing their thanks to their friends for the liberal patronage last night and the night before. Especially are we grateful to the young ladies and other friends who did so much to contribute to the success of the lawn party. Without their assistance it would have been a failure.

J. HENRY PHIPPS,
C. E. BROWER,
W. E. PHIPPS,
Committee.

The Only Lady Member.

The only lady in attendance upon the sessions of the North Carolina Bankers' Association is Miss Belle M. Faucett, representing the First National Bank of Mt. Airy. Miss Faucett is a young lady of charming appearance and is the recipient of much attention at the hands of the male members of the association. She is the daughter of the president of the First National Bank of Mt. Airy, her sister being the efficient cashier.

Judgment Suspended.

Sherrod Gerringer, one of the defendants in the big slander suit from the eastern part of the county, appeared in open court yesterday and plead guilty. After statements by the attorneys the judge ordered the clerk to enter a degree of judgment suspended on payment of costs. Capiases have been issued for the two Philippi boys, the other defendants, who ran away.

Both Profitable and Pleasant.

The Southside Hose Company's second attempt to give a lawn party was a success last night. A good crowd was present and everything passed off pleasantly. The net proceeds of the two nights will amount to about $105.

FOR THE FIREMEN.

Will the Aldermen Arrange for a Suitable Building?

One of the most important matters the Board of Aldermen has had to deal with in a long while will come up tonight in the shape of the report of a committee appointed to investigate the advisability of erecting a building for two companies of the volunteer fire department—the Eage Hose Company and the Hook and Ladder Company. The need of such a building has long been apparent, and it has been promised the firemen from time to time.

The quarters at present occupied are inadequate and have been for some years, the firemen making out with them under the promise of something better in the future. They argue that it would be only simple economy for the city to provide a suitable building for the care and protection of the apparatus and as headquarters for the men, and it is hoped that the aldermen can see their way clear to at once arrange for the erection of such a building. The firemen would appreciate it and it would add greatly to the efficiency of the department.

Display of Mechanical Work.

Dr. Winston had on display at the Hotel Guilford this morning specimens of the work of the students in the North Carolina College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts which showed to what a stage of perfection the students of the institution are trained. Every boy who goes to the Agricultural and Mechanical College, no matter for what trade or profession he fits himself, must spend certain hours each day in the mechanical department.

Dr. Winston says he carries this display around with him for two reasons: To correct an impression prevailing in some sections that the Agricultural and Mechanical College is a low grade literary institution, and to show that North Carolina boys have the stuff in them if they only have an opportunity to make skilled worknmen of themselves.

Toasting the General.

At a family party where young people predominated, the grandmother of a dozen lively boys and girls suggested a game which had been in vogue in her childhood. With the substitution of the name of the President for that she gave, the game was played with great success and much merriment.

"It was called 'Toasting the General,'" she said, "and was handed down from my grandmother, who was a contemporary of George Washington.

"The boys and girls were seated around the table, and a glass of water was placed before each one. The leader took up his glass, saying gravely, 'I drink to the health of Gen. George Washington!' Then he nodded his head once, took one sip of water, and touched the bottom of his glass once to the table before setting it down. He then patted the table once with his right hand and the floor once with his right foot. This formula went around the table.

"Next the leader said, 'I drink for the second time to the health of Gen. George Washington. As he took up his glass he nodded twice, took two sips of water, touched his glass twice to the table, patted the table twice with his left hand and the floor twice with his left foot. This again went the rounds.

"Then the leader raised his glass again, saying, 'I drink for the third and last time to the health of Gen. George Washington!' nodded three times, took three sips of water, touched his glass three times to the table, patted the table three times, first with his left and then with his right hand, and the first with his left and then with his right foot.

"This ended the game, save for the forfeits which were called in consequence of mistakes. And there was scarcely a person in the room who had not nodded or sipped in the wrong order, or patted too many or too few times, or with the wrong hand or foot; so there was much sport."

Fun, as well as history, repeats itself, and the same old-time game was pounced one of the best forfeit plays the boys and girls had ever tried.

TREASURER WORTH'S REMARKS

TO CUSTODIANS OF STATE'S FUNDS.

The Number of Banks in the State Has Increased From 81 in 1895 to 117 in 1900. Resources Increased From $18,069,650 to $29,332,357—The Figures Show a Very Great Increase in Business.

Below are the remark in full, made yesterday before the Bankers' Association by State Treasurer Worth.

Gentlemen of the Association: While I have no special address to make, I am very glad to have the pleasure of being among you and enjoying your interesting and profitable meeting. I am especially interested in the members of this association because I realize that you are the custodians of all, or nearly all, of the funds of the State. When you close your vaults at the end of each day's work you do so with nearly every dollar of the funds of the State treasury. I do not think I keep in our safes at the capitol an average of more than one thousand dollars per day. Nearly one and a half million dollars, besides the treasurer ex-officio business, is handled annually through the banks by the treasury department. And since we are so intimately connected with you in handling the State's money it is very gratifying to note your success and prosperity, and as I have the pleasure of speaking to you I will give you a few figures relative to the general condition of the banks of the State, which having studied with interest myself, I trust will be interesting to you. I have compiled these summaries with a good deal of pains, but as it would perhaps weary you to give them in full I have decided to use only the totals and a few special items. The following figures are based on a comparison of reports made by you to the treasury department on March 5, 1695, and those made to the Corporation Commission on April 26, 1900, except those of the national banks, which are taken from the reports of the comptroller of the currency of the same dates, covering a period of five years. In referring to these reports I will simply mention the year.

In 1895, 81 banks were reported, 26 National, 39 State, 12 private, and 4 savings Banks, and the grand total resources amounted to $18,069,650 81. In 1900, 117 banks were reported, 29 National, 54 State, 25 Private and 9 Savings Banks, with grand total resources amounting to $29,332,357.44, showing an increase of $11,262,706.63. You will observe that this is an increase of .6232 per cent. in the grand total resources of the banks of the State within the five years. We find that the grand total loans and discounts in 1895 amounted to $11,009,-918.73 in 1900, $18,393,823.66, an increase of $7,383,904.93, or .6706 per cent. In 1895 the grand total banking capital was $5,279,985.00, in 1900, $5,609,277.09, showing an increase of $329,287.09, only a little over .06 per cent. (.06 23). In 1885 the grand total deposits amounted to $9,597,595.89, in 1900, $18,062,362.86, an increase of $8,464,766.97 or .8819 per cent.

The above comparisons are made from the combined reports of all the banks of the State. We will now take up the different classes of banks. In 1895, 26 National Banks were reported, the total resources amounting to $9,-991,612.84 and in 1900 29 National Banks were reported and resources amounting to $15,105,744.05, showing an increase of $5,114,131.21 or .5118 per cent. In 1895 the loans and disconnts were $5,846,847.56, in 1900, $9,066,-371, an increase of $3,219,490.15 or 55.06 per cent. The capital stock in 1895 amounted to $2,776,000.00 in 1900 $3,001,000.00, an increase of $225,000.00 or .08.105 per cent. In 1895 the total deposits amounted to $4,913,411.63, in 1900 $8,279,556.90, an increase of $3,-356,145 27 or .6932 per cent.

In order to be brief we will combine the reports of the State, Private, and Savirgs Banks, and we find that the total resources in 1895 were $8,078,-037.97, in 1900, $14,226,613.39, and increase of $6,148,575.42, or .7611 per cent. The loans and discounts in 1895 amounted to $5,163,071.17, in 1900, $9,-327,485.95, an increase of $4,164,414.78 or .8066 per cent. The total capital stock in 1895 was $2,503,995.00 in 1900 $2,608,277.09, an increase of $104,287,-09 or .0416 per cent. The total deposits in 1895 were $4,684,185.26, in 1900 $9,792,805.96, an increase of $5-108,621.70 or 107 per cent.

The total resources of the State banks in 1895 were $6,174,117.98, in 1900, $10,461,566.39. Total resources of private banks in 1895, $1,297,519.29, in 1900, $1,942,676.48. The total resources of savings banks in 1895 were $624,400-70, in 1900 $1,822,370.52. We might mention in this connection that the savings banks show the greatest increase, having increased more than 100 per cent. in number, nearly threefold in resources and more than threefold in deposits. The deposits in 1895 were $508,630.65, in 1900, $1,587,480 84

While the above brief statement may not give an entirely fair idea of the banks of the State, it certainly shows that the increase in business has been very great. And in as much as banks are not grasping money-making institutions, without regard for the fellow on the other side of the counter, as they were once thought by some to be, but are important factors in all commercial enterprises; and as they are so imtimately connected with the general welfare of the State we would conclude that other professions and industries have enjoyed something of the same prosperity.

I wish to thank you for the kind and business-like manner in which you have treated me in my official capacity. I wish that you may have continued success, and may you always enjoy the respect and confidence of the people in the pursuance of your honorable profession.

THE CITY'S WARM PECEPTION.

HAS BEEN GIVING 'EM FOR 100 YEARS

Mr. Thompson's Reply to Maj. Stedman's Address of Welcome—The Difference Between the Warm Receptions of 100 Years Ago and Now—The City of Flowers, Attractive Homes and Lovely Women—Retain All the Virtues of their Ancestors.

The following is the reply to Maj. Stedman's address of welcome to the bankers yesterday, by Hon. Alf A. Thompson, Vice President of the Commercial and Farmer's Bank of Raleigh:

To the citizens of Greensboro: Once upon a time there came to the villiage of Pittsboro a young and handsome soldier with a brilliant record behind him, and while waiting for clients to come to him he taught a small school for boys. His attractive personality drew the boys to him from the first, and a closer acquaintance revealing many admirable traits of character, and a perfect store house of knowledge caused the boys not only to love him, but to wonder that one small head could carry all he knew, Time has dealt very kindly with him in the years that have passed, and now while his hair is almost as white as snow, he still has the erect form of the soldier, his eye has lost none of its fire and brilliancy, his attractive personality still remains, and around him still gather men who love him, and are still wondering "that one small head could carry all he knew." To me his words of welcome are therefore particularly touching. While the Bankers' Association is made to feel that it is a good thing to be here, Greensboro is to be congratulated that this is his home, and that Charles Manly Stedman may live long and prosper, is the earnest prayer of one of his boys.

For more than one hundred years Greensboro has been giving warm receptions. The first historical account of one can be found in Caruthers' History of North Carolina. The difference between this last reception and the first, being that the Englishman was only too glad to get away, while we will be only too glad to stay.

Beautiful Greensboro; the City of Flowers, of attractive homes, and lovely women; what a pleasure your hospitality has conferred on these bankers of the State. They are made to forget that dividends must be earned; that a paper may be past due, that an account may be overdrawn, and while basking in the sunshine of your smiles they are oblivious to all cares. Only one shadow flits across their minds, and that is, that these are only "days of grace." Would that we could prolong them. We are even considering the advisability of graduating from the Keely Institute, so intoxicated are we with the delights of this lovely city.

Greensboro, resting like an emerald in the lap of these Piedmont hills, is the Gate City of this section, her railways radiating to all points of the compass have bound our affections and our interests with "bands of iron" and "hoops of steel."

Her people retain all the virtues of their ancestors, the Quakers, but have discarded their quaint ideas and too conservative characteristics. The energy, enterprise and progress on every side bear eloquent testimony to the character, capacity and progressiveness of her people. It was a citizen of Greensboro who first conceived the great project of building the North Carolina Railroad. He with his associates pushed this enterprise with vigor, and today its stock is widely sought after, while flourishing towns are numerous all along its line. From the time of Morehead until this day Greensboro has continued to furnish broad men with big brains; statesmen, ministers, educators, soldiers, jurists, merchants, manufacturers, physicians and financers, in fact in every great movement, whether in peace or war, Greensboro has most nobly borne her part.

In the State Normal College she has conferred a benediction on the women of her State, while in the Greensboro Female College, a great Methodist denomination receives an annual impulse which will exert a lasting influence on its membership.

The banks, guarding her savings and fostering her growing industries, are contributing daily to her splendid achievements and these manufacturing enterprises are giving employment to labor, which in turn makes possible the success of her varied commercial interests.

The high standing of the ministers of your city is acknowledged throughout the State, while the members of the legal professional would adorn the bench or bar of any courts within our borders. That you should be a happy and contented people is not surprising; that you will keep time to every step of progress is assured. May we not hope that at no distant day the association may again have the freedom of your city, but whether this be so or not we will bid you farewell with regret, taking with us the earnest hope that your future may shine with increasing effulgence, "that your sons may be as plants grown up in youth, that your daughters may be as corner stones polished after the similitude of a palace, that your garners may be full, affording all manner of store, and that you may be a happy people whose God is the Lord."

OFF TO THE FRONT

"Poor fellow, you are really awfully hard on him, Stella! I must say I like him."

"It's all very fine for you, Cousin Jane, to talk like that, seeing that you haven't been prop sed to by him on an average once a fortnight ever since the Seventh were quartered here."

Stella was generally voted the prettiest and the nicest girl in Exminster by the Seventh, who paid her court in large numbers, but none with such assiduity as little Tommy Lascelles, "the Duffer," as he was called by his brother officers who, notwithstanding were roughly kind to him—kindness for which they hardly guessed "the Duffer" was supremely grateful; he had the softest heart hidden away in a rather quaint little body, and—other things of which nobody suspected him, or perhaps this story would never have been written.

("I have just come to tell you that I love you.")

But to return to Stella.

"Now," she said, "if it was Major Lansdowne, I could understand your championship, whereas the Lascelles boy——Really, Cousin Jane, where can your eyes be?"

Almost as she spoke the door opened and "Major Lansdowne" was announced, then "Capt. Frekè," and a few moments later "Mr. Lascelles."

The last comer was relegated to Mrs. Ogilvie's tender mercies. Apparently Stella was too much occupied with her other guests to have a word to spare, and the little man sat beside Mrs. Ogilvie, sipped his tea and talked.

Presently he rose to go.

"This is a long good-by," he said, very gravely; "you know we are ordered to the front—to-morrow I go north to see my people, and on Thursday we sail."

Mrs. Ogilvie saw Stella's face grow deadly pale; she saw, too, that young Lascelles had noted it, and that he glanced toward Major Lansdowne.

"Do believe me," he said in his quiet gentle way, "that if I can shield him for your sake in any way it shall be done."

An expression of complete bewilderment on Stella's face, noted by Mrs. Ogilvie, was quite lost upon young Lascelles, whose eyes seemed suddenly to have grown curiously dim.

* * * * * * *

Across the bare brown veldt a solitary horseman made his way. "Rather a good horse," he had said, which was hardly doing the animal justice. It was the fleetest in the regiment and had won many a race before young Lascelles had bought it.

Inside his coat lay the despatches, which, did they ever reach their destination, would save the lives of hundreds of his fellow-soldiers.

Just then an agonizing pain in his hand, another near his head, where a bullet grazed his ear and sent the warm blood over his face, turned him sick and faint.

Every moment he seemed more and more to lose control over his limbs, but he clutched his horse's mane with one hand and guided it with the other, pulled himself together with a supreme effort of will, and at last rode into N——. He fainted as somebody helped him off his horse, but his work was done.

* * * * * * *

In her pretty drawing-room at Exminster sat Mrs. Ogilvie and Stella.

The morning papers had just arrived and they had rushed to open them.

Stella suddenly laid down the paper and burst into tears.

Mrs. Ogilvie crossed the room and put a pair of very kindly, motherly arms round the sobbing girl.

"What is it, child?" she whispered.

Stella pointed to a name in the list of the "seriously wounded." It was that of Lieut. Lascelles, of the Seventh Regiment.

Mrs. Ogilvie's eyes held a question which Stella answered. "I love him," she said, "and have loved him for ages—and now he will never know."

"Never know!" That was not Mrs. Ogilvie's idea at all—and the next passenger ship to "the front" carried the two ladies on board, bound for a certain town in South Africa, where a hero lay wounded, but mercifully not "unto death."

What passed at that first meeting who can tell? How Stella went into that hospital ward, and he, seeing her coming, could hardly believe the evidence of his own eyes.

"I have come," she said simply, "just to tell you that I love you, that I have loved you all along, and that I can't live without you."

The nursing sister is wont to declare that it was a mysterious thing the rapidity of Mr. Lascelles's recovery dating from that visit, and soon after he was invalided home on sick leave.

During the time he was in England there came a day when England's Queen distributed to her bravest soldiers some little iron crosses with the words "For valor" thereon, and the one whom she specially singled out to speak to him words no man would care to forget so long as he lived was no other than little Lascelles, "the Duffer of the Regiment."—London Morning Leader.

RHEUMATISM

Distorts Muscles, Shatters Nerves, Stiffens Joints.

Is due to an acid poison which gains access to the blood through failure of the proper organs to carry off and keep the system clear of all morbid, effete matter. This poison through the general circulation is deposited in the joints, muscles and nerves, causing the most intense pain.

Rheumatism may attack with such suddenness and severity as to make within a few days a healthy, active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow in developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic.

Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, acquired or inherited, Rheumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potash and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful solvent, purifying properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and in the right place—the blood—and quickly neutralizes the acid and dissolves all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system of all unhealthy accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Mr. J. O. Malley, 123 W. 15th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried fifty-two prescriptions that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. Our physicians have made blood and skin diseases a life study, and will give you any information or advice wanted, so write them fully and freely about your case. We make no charge whatever for this service. Address, SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

FRIDAY, JUNE 15, 1900.

A CALDWELL PATRIOT FALLS DOWN

We confess to a degree of pleasure in learning of the downfall of a patriot of Caldwell county, the individual being J. A Crisp, chairman of the Republican executive committee of Caldwell, and assistant postmaster at Lenoir, and nominee for representative. It came about by the braggadocio of the young man, in manner below mentioned:

Mr. Aycock made a speech at Lenoir, devoting all his time to a discussion of the amendment. After the speech, Mr. Crisp banteringly sent word to Mr. Aycock that if the latter would make affidavit, unequivocally, that no white man would be disfranchised by the amendment he would vote for it. Mr. Aycock promptly went before the clerk of the court and made the affidavit. The great surprise of Mr. Crisp may well be imagined and his chagrin may also beguessed at when he found that Mr. Aycock meant business instead of joking. The result was that Mr. Crisp was forced to sign the following affidavit:

North Carolina, Caldwell county.

J. A. Crisp being duly sworn, deposes and says that after reading the foregoing affidavit of C. B. Aycock, he hereby obligates himself to vote for the proposed amendment to the constitution of the State of North Carolina.

[Signed) J. A. CRISP.

We give Mr. Crisp just ten days in which to do one of two things: foreswear that affidavit, or get out of the post office, resign his place as chairman, and throw up his nomination. Which will he do? If he is built of the right kind of material he will stick to his oath, if not, he will deny it. In either case he is in trouble. But blessings never come in disguise, and from this episode Mr. Crisp will learn the valuable lesson of not to get too gay at critical times.

There is nothing to be deplored more than the tendency to separate a class of men from the body politic and say that their interests are such and such, and that they are at enmity towards others. Prejudice has often said this of banks and bankers. In his speech yesterday President Brown recognized this fact when he said:

"As a matter of fact the bankers of today are not rich men. They are men who, just as much as 'the man with the hoe,' are 'by the sweat of their faces' endeavoring to earn an honest support for their wives and children.  Their sympathies are with the people because they are of the people."

We are pleased to give in full today several papers read before the Bankers' Association, which were given only in brief yesterday afternoon. Other valuable papers will be printed in full tomorrow. These papers are not only of interest to the bankers themselves, but to the general public as well, because the subjects they discuss are of wide reaching influence in every branch of business and industry.

The legislature adjourned at ten o'clock last night, as foretold in the Telegram yesterday. No business of importance was transacted after the report of yesterday afternoon.

Very insignificant straws show which way the storm is going, sometimes. Over in China we see a Frenchy trying to flung a bayonet into a Johnny Bull, and a Yankee preventing him, while the cause of it all is the concerted action of Frenchmen and Russians.

THE BANKERS' SECOND DAY.

a nursery of men. Her climate is the golden mean between the cold of the north and the heat of the south. The United States possesses, broadly speaking, four climates. 1. The Atlantic Coast; 2. The Mississippi Valley; 3. The Rocky Mountain Plateau; 4. The Pacific Coast. The best of these climates is the Atlantic Coast, and the best climate on the Atlantic Coast is in North Carolina. This is a fact of tremendous significance; it means a never ending supply of strong, vigorous, self-reliant manhood and capable, healthful and beautiful womanhood. Our population, now almost entirely native, and sprung originally from the hardiest stocks in the world, English, Scotch, Irish, Dutch and German, have shown themselves, under the most trying conditions in peace and in war, to be made of the finest and strongest fibre. They are the best human ore in existence, and they will become the sharpest and most efficient instruments for the creation of wealth, if only they are hammered into steel and fashioned into tools by the magic power of education and training.

THE FUTURE OF NORTH CAROLINA.

North Carolina has every element of wealth excepting skilled labor and technical knowledge. She promises abundant raw material for varied and extensive manufacturies, large water power and convenient supplies of coal; easy access to the markets of the world, soil adapted to the production of all crops and the support of all animals essential to man's comfort and enjoyment: regular seasons with sufficient rainfall; forests of the most useful trees, abundant and self-renewing; climate favorable to health, labor and economical living; population docile, intelligent, hardy and reliable. The only thing needed is skill and training, technical knowledge and machinery. Our boys and girls are growing up frequently, too frequently, in ignorance, in idleness and in poverty. By training and education they might be converted into skilled workers and become wealth producers. Twenty thousand lads in our State today are earning less than 50 cents daily. With one years' training they might earn $2, and with four years' training the most talented and energetic of them might become engineers, chemists, architects, and manufacturers, developing new industries, directing skilled labor and furnishing renumerative employment to thousands of workmen now idle or earning a mere subsistence. The negro boy in the South has better opportunities for industrial education than the white boy.

Hampton Institute in Virginia and Tuskegee Institute in Alabama are training thousands of negroes annually to be skilled workmen. They have no rivals in institutions for the training of Southern white youth. In North Carolina there are more institutions and larger equipment for negro industrial education than for white. The State appropriates only $30,000 for the support of its College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts in Raleigh. Massachuseets, at the head of the industrial column, in order to stay there and in order to keep us at the foot, spends unnually $1,000 for industrial education to every dollar spent by North Carolina. For lack of a thousand dollars last session, one half of the Freshman Class in our Agricultural and Mechanical College were without tools for working in the shops; for lack of rooms to sleep in, 150 boys will be turned away from the College in September; for lack of $500, our College is unable to make its own castings and to give instruction in this line of work; for lack of $10 000, we are deprived of a building and suitable machinery for textile instruction. Although nature declares that the greatest opportunity of the century for the development of cotton manufacture in all forms belongs to North Carolina, we are permitting other states less favored by nature to steal our birthright. South Carolina, at a cost of only $30,000.00 established a textile school three years ago, where the pupils today are weaving beautiful fabrics on Jacquard looms. Over a hundred pupils are in this school. The State of Georgia has established a large and well equipped textile school in Atlanta, and preparations are now making in that city for the manufacture of textile machinery. The legislature of Mississippi, after hearing an address from North Carolina's active and eloquent industrial pioneer, Mr. D. A. Tompkins, of Charlotte, immediately voted $40,000 for the establishment of a textile school. In North Carolina we are disfranchising the negro, but providing more generously for his industrial education than for that of the white boy. We are asserting Anglo-Saxon superiority and failing to provide the education necessary to maintain it. North Carolina should be the Massachusetts of the South. Her College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, rivaling the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, should train annually for the service of the State and the development of its thoroughly equipped engineers (civil, electrical, sanitary, mining, mechanical and chemical), architects, chemists, agriculturalists and horticulturists. By the side of this great college should stand a school for the manual training of skilled workmen; carpenters, brick-layers, plasterers, mechanics, machinists electricians, boiler and engine tenders, dynamo-tenders, dairymen, florists gardners and stock-raisers When this is done, we will say of North Carolina, not that she fills every blank in the census table, but that she produces a greater variety of raw material and manufactures it into more valuable products than any State in the Union, and that her people, adding to the blessings of nature, the power of trained skill and technical knowlege, have provided for themselves and their descendents, not only liberty and good government, but the highest average of health, wealth, comfort and happieess obtainable on the globe.

At the close of Dr. Winston's most admirable address President Brown, in a few well chosen words, introduced Mr. Lawrence B. Kemp, president o the Commercial and Farmers Bank of Baltimore, who delivered a short and interesting address on "Practical Thoughts on Banking."

Mr. Kemp's address was very practical, dealing with the special features of modern banking. For a number of years Mr. Kemp was a National bank examiner for Maryland and the District of Columbia and is thoroughly familiar with every phase of banking.

Judge James E. Shepherd, of Raleigh, was to have read a paper before the association, but on account of an unavoidable professional engagement he was unable to be present. He was represented by his son, Mr. S. Brown Shepherd, who read a valuable paper dealing with some of the laws and recent decisions of the Supreme Court of North Carolina bearing in a practical way upon the banking business.

Shorts reports from the members of the association were called for, a number of the bankers responding with short and encouraging reports of the condition of business in their respective towns. The trend of opinion was that the banks in North Carolina are in splendid condition, all lines of business having greatly improved during the past year. Remarks were made by the following representatives:

J. P. Sawyer, of the Battery Park Bank, Asheville; A. G. Brenizer, Commercial National Bank of Charlotte; E. F. Young, of the Commercial and Farmers Bank, Dunn; John F. Wiley, Fidelity Bank, Durham; W. T. Old, First National Bank, Elizabeth City; Lee H. Battle, City National Bank, Greensboro; W. E. Allen, of the Greensboro Loan and Trust Company; A. W. McAlister and R. G. Vaughn, of the Southern Loan and Trust Company, Greensboro; W. A. Hunt, of the Citizens Bank of Henderson; J. H. Beall, of the Bank of Lenoir; J. W. Byerly, Farmers and Merchants Bank, Louisburg, and A. W. McLean, of the Bank of Lumberton.

Before adjourning this afternoon resolutions were adopted thanking the Merchants and Manufacturers Association for the use of the club rooms; the Daughters of the Confederacy and other ladies of Greensboro for the reception last night; the railroads and newspapers for courtesies extended, and the gentlemen who delivered addresses and read papers.

Charlotte, Asheville and Morehead City were placed in nomination as the next place of meeting. By a unanimous vote Asheville was selected.

The following officers were unanimously elected to serve during the ensuing year:

President—J. P. Sawyer.

First Vice-President—A. G. Brenizer.

Second Vice-President—G. W. Montcastle.

Third Vice-President—L. H. Cutler.

Secretary and Treasurer—John M. Miller, Jr.

Executive Committee—C. N. Evans, H. L. Hunt, J. G. Brown and Lee H. Battle.

Delegate to American Bankers' Association—Thomas H. Battle.

RECEPTION LAST NIGHT.

The reception in the club rooms of the Merchants's and Manufacturers' Association last night was a very pleasant affair. In addition to the bankers, it was attended by a large number of the citizens of Greensboro, who were pleased to meet the visiting financiers.

Tonight the members of the association will attend in a body an entertainment at the State Normal and Industrial College.

JINGLES.

A Great Dream Book.

He wrote a book and sent a copy
To one whom he adored;
He put these words upon the fly-leaf:
"I pray it may afford
You such sweet pleasure in the reading
As is has given me
The while I wrote it, dreaming—dreaming—
Shall I confess?—of thee!"

In time he got the maiden's answer:
"Thanks for your book," she said;
"It has afforded me much pleasure
And still it is unread.
Each-day when I loll in my hammock
I have your book with me—
You wrote it dreaming, and in reading
I, too, have dreams," she said.

Queen of the Arkansaw.

Maid Mary of the Arkansaw of beauty cannot boast,
No gallant knight in sparkling wine her eyes would care to toast,
Her figure not a connoisseur would call of perfect mould,
And in her hair there's many a silver thread among the gold.
And yet admirers by the score are seeking for her hand,
From cowboys, rough in speech and dress, to nabobs of the land;
They see in her without a doubt a most enticing prize—
She owns a thousand head of steers, and beef is on the rise!
—Denver Evening Post.

Our Flag.

Wave on, O banner, beautiful,
Wave on with power and might,
Proclaiming freedom, liberty;
Wave on, O banner bright!

America, our honored land,
Be not cast down this day.
Thy sons have gone to fight for thee;
Thy daughters watch and pray.

Dear flag, so beautiful and free,
In dust you shall not drag.
O sailor boys, O soldiers, brave,
Protect our country's flag.

We'll trust in God and pray to him
To guide our steps aright,
And we will punish all who dare
Insult our banner bright.

Our country's flag, long may it wave
All o'er this glorious land,
And may it never be removed
Except by God's own hand.
—Dora F. Jones.

Missed Chances.

Some men get on in life because
They like to do their best,
And many a toiler rises just
To keep up with the rest.
There's many a man who wins because
Good luck falls in his way,
But never a one by grieving o'er
A chance missed yesterday.
—Chiicago Times-Herald.

Unknown In His Country.

"You have got a curious custom here," remarked the educated heathen from somewhere in Central Asia, "of boarding up the windows of vacant houses. Is it to show that they are for rent?"

"Not at all,' responded the native American. "It is to keep the boys from breaking the panes of glass."

"How odd!" mused the visiting heathen. "I do not remember that I ever heard the missionaries speak of that."—Chicago Tribune.

Emphatic Enough.

The angry father strode into the parlor.

"Girls," he said, "who are these young men?"

"Papa," replied one of the daughters, this is Mr. Young and this is Mr. Yates."

Whereupon the old gentleman invitingly opened the door.

"Git!" he thundered.

And they got. A word to the Y's was sufficient.—Chicago Tribune.

Just What He Needs.

"What in the world did you buy that piece of land for?" was asked of the visionary citizen who suddenly decided to take up his residence outside the city. "The soil is unproductive and sour."

"Good! Your judgment confirms my own. If the soil is not sour my scheme is a failure. I propose to raise cucumbers and young onions that are pickled in the growth."—Detroit Free Press.

COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jaundice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and Kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at C. E. Holton's drug store.

A COMPLICATED QUESTION.

The Desperado's Mean Trick on His Widow.

For a Western town, which was rather wild and woolly than otherwise, she was a very presentable woman in manner and attire, and when she came into the lawyer's office and said she had some important business for him to handle for her he felt that he had struck a rich lead.

"Well, madam," he said, when he had seated her comfortably and fixed himself to listen, "if you will tell me the nature of your business I shall be glad to give you the best advice and service at my command."

"It's about some money that my husband left," she said for a beginning.

"Is he dead?"

"Yes, sir; I'm Bill Nellton's widow."

"The notorious—excuse me, madam—the celebrated desperado who killed so many men?"

"The same one."

"Did he leave much of a fortune?"

"A good deal for me. About $10,000."

"A very snug little sum, I am sure," smiled the lawyer with a yearning smile.

"But it isn't mine altogether," she explained.

"Why not?"

"That's what I come to see you about. Perhaps it is mine."

"Tell me the particulars."

"Well, it's this way: You see, when I married Bill I was poor and had no home, and I married him because he had money and I thought there was a good chance of my getting it, for, you know, Bill went around with his life in his hands all the time. He knowed I never married him for love, but he didn't care about that so long as I would marry him. He said he was likely to go any time with his boots on, and was willing for me to marry again, but he wanted me to marry a better man than he was, and he made a will leaving me everything on condition that I would marry the man that killed him. That suited me well enough, because I knew there wasn't any less desirable man for a husband than Bill was, so I agreed to it in writing. Then Bill went it too strong and got the Sheriff after him for shooting a man without provocation, and the Sheriff had been an old beau of mine, and Bill didn't like the looks of things, and what did he do when he was close pushed but shoot himself."

"Oh!" exclaimed the lawyer, startled by the suddenness of the tale.

"And he done it just to spite me," whimpered the widow, "for with that signed agreement of mine along with the will, what was I to do? That's what I've come to see you about. I can't very well marry the man that killed Bill, and if I marry anybody else I'm going to lose $10,000. At least, that's the way it looks on paper. I'm tired of being a widow, but I'm not $10,000 worth tired, and I want you to tell me the law on the situation."

At last accounts the lawyer was knee deep in lawbooks looking up authorities.—Detroit Free Press.

IN HONOR OF MISS LINTON.

Mrs. Thompson Charmingly Entertains a Number of Friends.

Mrs. Milton Wesley Thompson entertained yesterday afternoon in honor of her guest, Miss Margaret Linton of Washington, D. C.

The home was exquisitely decorated with magnolias and ferns—the parlors were made beautiful and fragrant by their use, and in the dinning room, where Miss Margaret DeButts did the honors, they were abundant in handsome cut glass vases and bowls.

Mrs. Thompson, handsome in white organdy, received her guests with easy grace and charming cordiality.

Miss Linton, who is one of Washington's beautiful women, was also prettily gowned in white organdy. Mrs. Thompson's guests werh:

Mesdames McAdoo King, A. Johnson, James Francis Jordon, O. Williams, Dr. Stamey, W. P. Beall, Dr. Battle, Howard Gardner, Forbis, Jas. E. Tomlinson, A. L. Rankin, C. E. Holton, J. C. Miss Francis O'Brien gave the Progressive Euchre Club a most thoroughly enjoyable meeting last evening at her home on East Lee street.

Miss O'Brien was assisted in doing the honors by her attractive guest, Miss Martha Harvey, of Danville Va.

The parlors were beautifully decorated with pink roses and evergreens.

Miss Harvey was fortunate in winning a greater number of games than other lady present and received a lovely blue and white rose bowl. Mr. George Boyd secured the genleman's prize, a pretty paper knife. After the excitement of the game the delicious ices were more then welcome.

Mrs. O'Brien's guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Parker, Gen. and Mrs. James D. Glenn, Judge and Mrs. W. P. Bynum, Mrs. and Mrs. W. T. Gayle, Mr. and Mrs. Fry, Mrs. B. C. Sharpe, Mrs. Sam Boyd, Mrs. Oscar Williams, Mrs. Ernest Holt, Mrs. W. P. Beall, Mrs. Page, Mrs. Wetmore; Misses Mabel Kase, Bessie Ballard, Berta Mebane, Mary Horry, Imogene Bernard, Wetmore; Messrs. ASSURANCE.

And the Young Man Had Ideas About Enjoyment.

He is a young man whose unbounded assurance has ever been his chief characteristic. When he proceeded to talk to the practical old gentleman about marrying his daughter he was evidently prepared for the usual question:

"Do you think you can support my daughter in the style in which she has been accustomed?"

The parent spoke this phrase with the air of a man who thinks he has uttered a poser.

The suitor looked him in the eye.

"Let's talk this thing over," he said. "Do you think your daughter is qualified to make a man a good wife?"

"Yes sir. Her mother and I are both practical people, and we have given her a practical education. She can not only read Greek and play the piano—she practices three hours a day—but she can cook a good dinner, and do the marketing as intelligently as an experienced steward. Moreover, her abilities with the needle are not confined to fancy work. She's a treasure and we don't propose to have any doubt about her future."

"You were asking me if I thought I could support her in style to which she had been accustomed?"

"I was."

"Well, I could; but I don't propose to. After she marries me she's not going to practice any three hours a day on any piano, nor cook dinners, nor bandy words with market people. She's going to have all the sewing done outside the house, read what she enjoys, whether it is Greek or Choctaw, and go to the theatre twice a week. It's time that girl had some enjoyment out of life.—Exchange.

REPORT OF DELEGATE FRIES.

TELLS OF AMERICAN ASSOCIATION.

The Beautiful City of Cleveland Literally Threw its Doors Open, and Nothing Was Left Undone—600 Bankers Were Present, and The Work of The Association Lasted Three Days.

Mr. F. H. Fries, delegate to the American Bankers' Association from North Carolina, yesterday read his report of the meeting which he attended at Cleveland, O., September 3-5, 1899. The report is given below in full.

Mr. President and Members of the North Carolina Bankers' Association, Gentlemen:—

In September last I had the honor and privilege to bear to the American Bankers' Association assembled at Cleveland, Ohio, the greetings and good wishes of this Association, and I am happy at this first opportunity, although at this late date, to make a brief report of the character of the reception accorded us and the work that is being done by that body.

I shall ever remember most pleasantly this visit to Cleveland as your representative, not only because the other members of this Association who were present on that occasion were the best and most genial of companions, but also because the reception given us by the Bankers from all over the country was the warmest and kindest possible, and reflected the entire assembly. Your honored President who is a member of the Executive Council of the American Bankers' Association, Mr. J. F. Wily of the Fidelity Bank of Durham, N. C., who is one of the Vice Presidents of the Association, your representative and the members of his family, composed the entire party from North Carolina.

It was a constant source of regret that a larger number from our State did not attend. The beautiful city of Cleveland literally threw open her doors and gave the Association the use of her charming parks, squares, and streets, with free transportation on all car lines, free entrance into all banks, public buildings and clubs, it entertained the Association with free rides on Lake Erie and wound up with an elegantly served banquet at which six hundred covers were arranged for one sitting, in a hall magnificently decorated with cut flowers. In fact, the solid gold badge given the delegates on their arrival admitted them to a series of most elaborate entertainments that crowded the time of the Association to accept them. Nothing was left undone by the authorities of the beautiful city of Cleveland or its liberal and hospitable bankers to make the occasion a success.

Apart from the lavish and elaborate entertainment of our hosts, there were nearly six hundred bankers present who came from all parts of the country, drawn by the kindred ties of a common interest, among them many men of prominence and ability, and the acquaintances made and the friendships formed will ever render our stay bright with pleasant memories.

The real work of the Association occupying three days was not interfered with and proved to be of great interest, both because of the nature of the subjects and the practical way in which they were discussed. The subject with which you are perhaps most familiar, and the one to which they have given much time and money, is the protective Agency; this has been followed to a point where it can be asserted that there is not an organized band of forgers or swindlers now operating on banks in this country, while burglars and thieves have been prosecuted with such vigor that they prefer to operate upon banks not members of the Association when they are bold enough to attempt to put in their work. The good work done by the Association in introducing and passing in most of the States of the Union the "Negotiable Instrument" law, very similar to that of our own State, is no doubt familiar to all present, and their efforts in this line are being extended and enlarged. They are also laboring to secure the adoption of

A uniform form of fidelity bond for the use of its members,

A standard form of statement for bank returns,

A uniform and universal credit system applicable to and for the use of its members, and many other things of general interest, while the matter of the best and most convenient forms of bookkeeping with accompanying blanks, files, etc. are securing due attention.

Last but not least, is the general discussion of all matters affecting the general business interests of the country, as seen from every standpoint in our land, and a full report of the prosperity and prospects of each section.

I am glad that the next session of this Association which meets in October, will be held in the city of Richmond, Va., principally because it is so near to us that all may attend, and I doubt not many will embrace this opportunity and I feel sure that those who do attend will feel well repaid for the time and expense.

The report of the Secretary at the last meeting showed that the membership numbered 3,915, that there was a gain of 530 members and $841,911,023 in assets during the year and that the combined assets of the Association were as follows:

Capital, surplus and undivided profits	$1,230,192,191
Deposits	4,501,367,328
Total	$5,731.559,519

The rapid growth of the Association is the best evidence of its value and usefulness.

In conclusion allow me to say that I appreciate and thank you for the honor conferred upon me in sending me as your representative to the 25th annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, as well as for your attention on this occasion.

Nothing that has ever yet been produced in the way of summer footwear for men will begin to compare for comfort, coolness and durability with shoes made of tan vici kid. If you have never tried shoes made of this material, ask any man who has worn them and you will find him ehthusiastic in their praise. But it is possible to have too much of a good thing and we find ourselves overstocked with certain lines of tan vici shoes So in order to reduce the surplus, we have cut some fifty pairs of the $3.50, $3.00 and $2.75 grades down to $2.48. You can see the samples of these in our north window the rest of this week and if you are going to need another pair of shoes this summer it will be worth your while to stop and take a look at these. "We tried many physicians and numerous remedies, but with no results, until I heard of Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. We bought six boxes, and the results far surpassed our expectations. is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

WINE OF CARDUI

Woman Knows Woman.

ZURICH, KAN., Jan. 31.

I used Wine of Cardui for nervousness and weakness in the womb. After taking one bottle I was well again. I am a midwife and always recommend Wine of Cardui to my lady friends during pregnancy and after birth as a tonic. Every lady who takes it finds that it does even more than is claimed for it.

MRS. V. M. BOISVERT.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Nobody knows woman like woman. Men go to medical colleges, study books and listen to lectures. They learn indirectly of the diseases of women, but they are men and can never fully understand the ailments, the sufferings, the agonies of mothers, wives and sisters. A woman knows. Mrs. Boisvert knows. She has passed through the trials and tribulations of her sex. She has been near by when her sisters suffered. She has seen them relieved and cured with Wine of Cardui. Is it any wonder she recommends it? Is it any wonder that thousands of other women recommend it. They know. They have actual experience to prompt them. They spread the tidings from mouth to mouth, telling how Wine of Cardui helps young girls, helps the weak of all ages, helps and cures all womanly ills.

EYES AND SAW NOT

They had met after some years of separation and silence. A foreign country was the magnet which drew them to the close intercourse of an ocean voyage, and the days of travel were times of mutual pleasure. From present enjoyment and future anticipations they drifted into past recollections and many threads of the old days were taken up again.

The journey ended all too soon, and with promises of continued intercourse the two parted, and the man shortly found himself established in the midst of the rush and confusion of the great city.

But in spite of the various interests which ministered to his thoughts and pleasure the heart of the man was lonely. In none of the long-dreamed of wonders and attractions could he lose the recollection of the girl's face or put to flight the constant cry of his deeper nature.

Trusting himself and his quest to the twilight which makes the floodgates of the heart to open and endows the dumb lips with power to utter the sacred things of the soul the man sought the girl whose will was to make for joy or sorrow in his life.

As she entered the room where he waited he rose eagerly with outstretched hands, and, leading her to a seat, bent upon her a gaze at once gentle and searching.

"Rachie," the old name came from his lips in the tone of a resumed habit. "Rachie, I want to tell you a story, which perhaps you will finish for me. Years ago a man of impetuous, earnest nature, met and loved—yes, loved—a girl much younger than himself. He sought her, gained her interest and endeavored to help her to the best things.

"Older, as I say, he was already battling with the world and life's stern problems. She was a mere child in these paths. Finally, the man came to feel that there was other work for him, serious, difficult work, which must needs demand the sacrifice of all selfish ambitions which should threaten this task to which he thought himself called of God.

"I pass quickly—he felt that his dream must be put aside—it was—and the two who had once looked forward to a 'might be' became 'friends.'

"The way was not always plain, even after the smoke had cleared from the altar. But the man set his face steadfastly to the sun of duty. The woman went her way also, and but rarely their lives touched.

"But one day Fate brings them together again. The old days, never wholly silenced, demand now an answer to their pleadings. 'We gave you gifts—what have you done wtih them? Is the present complete without the past?' And the man's heart answers 'No; one thing alone will satisfy and make real life's possibilities, and that is the treasure once wrongfully put aside.' Rachie, that is my story; what is the ending to be?"

The girl raised her tear-dimmed eyes and said softly but bravely, "Listen, dear friend. Years ago a girl met a man much older than herself and wiser. He sought and won her by the love and worth he brought to her. To her joy he tried to share, to bestow upon her the treasures he had gathered by the way.

"But, alas! for his blindness, he failed to see that the heart of the girl-woman could not live on the treasures of earth alone; it craved the food of heaven, love, and its fullest expression. So she hid within herself until she was misundertsood and thought irresponsive to the highest. There were paths opened to the man and he could do none else than tread them. And the girl, judged not ready to walk therein, must be told good-by.

"The man went his way along the narrow path of duty. The girl—no, a woman now—stood dazed and alone! Those were days never to be forgotten. Struggle for the victory of—the better part—renunciation. But," the voice grew wondrously soft and joyous, "but there came one day into the girl's life another guiding hand, always gentle, always helpful, strong and tender. Not beckoning on, but clasping hers with a clasp that meant trust, belief! And, oh! how the heart of the woman leaped to that trust. How every desire blossomed into realization!

"The soul bestowed its treasure on the soul that believed in it, and the giving and the taking, and the taking and giving, have made perfect joy and unity.

"Dear friend, need I tell you more?"

A silence rested upon the two. Then the man slowly rose, holding out his hand. The girl placed hers within it, and at the touch the man spoke:

"You have finished my story, Rachie, and though I would that the ending were, oh, so different, yet you have helped me, little one. You have taught me many good things, but the best is how to love. I have been blind. I see now. Goodby, and may all good attend thee and thine. Do not grieve for me, for to know you as I do now is much. Good-by."—Boston Post.

"How's that?"

"Why, they all get up and bang down their windows."—Detroit Free Press.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

QUART BOTTLES.

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

A Wise and Venerable Doctor Talks about Advanced Science.

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.
